

We are currently recruiting for a Linux System Administrator for one of most exciting and cutting edge companies in the aerospace industry.

This role would be supporting some of the most exciting projects within the industry and the incumbent would be responsible for maintaining their complex systems through service fixes, special projects, and all related system tasks.

Responsibilities include but are not limited to:

- Create documentation and electronically store daily task information related to architecture, processes and user instructions
- Interface with end clients within diverse business groups and support their needs
- Being a SME when it comes to all things Linux

Job Requirements

- In depth knowledge of Red Hat / CentOS 6.x operating systems
- 8+ years of Linux / Unix environment with over 3 years in Linux
- Knowledge of server configurations, NAS, SAN, DHCP, DNS, SMTP, and networking protocols, as well as open source technologies
- Ability to troubleshoot complex issues
- Knowledge of security hardening best practices
- Prior exposure to AWS technologies including CLI and API, is a plus, but someone willing to learn is also a fit

A qualified candidate should be highly self-motivated, have a sharp attention to detail, and possess proven analytical and problem-solving abilities. The successful candidate should be a quality-oriented team player who desires a challenging role on a team with likeminded individuals. Strong written and oral communication skills, a customer first approach, the ability to work well under pressure, multi-tasking and problem solving are crucial to success in the role.

If you are qualified and available, we'd love to hear from you. If you have any questions about this job or would like to discuss the role in more detail, please contact Daniel Morison directly at 310.929.5444 or daniel.morison@brynneil.com

About Bryn Neil.

Bryn Neil International is a high growth technology staffing company headquartered in El Segundo, California.

We are dedicated to matching high quality people with high quality openings and work with a wide variety of rewarding employers, from Fortune 1000 companies, to fast paced, high growth start-ups.

Please visit our website for more details.

Responsive. Relevant. Resources.^(TM)

www.brynneil.com